Mrs. Ellis Pence has just completed a superb life size crayon portrait of Hon. John T. Wilson, ordered by the Commissioners of Adams county. It was shipped to West Union Saturday.

Judge Sage says in effect that the receiver of the Citizens' National shall not distribute plans to his friends in the shape of fat legal fees from the money of the depositors. Bully for Sage!

Quite a number of Hillsboro Masons attended the funeral of J. W. Powell, at New Vienna, Sunday. Mr. Powell was a member of the Commandery at this place, and his tragic death elicited deep sympathy in this community.

On the 20th, at the Reform parsonage, Rev. H. H. Sandoe united in matrimonial bonds, O. H. Simpson, of Marshall, and Lilly Belle Fawley, of the Danville vicinity. The happy couple have our best wishes for happiness and prosperity.

Horrible Death.

Mirabeau Lynn, formerly engineer at the Hillsboro Electric Light plant, was crushed to death by an elevator in the Goodall building, Cincinnati, yesterday, Tuesday, evening. He was engineer, and in the absence of the proper attendant, was called to work a defective elevator. It started up suddenly and he tried to get on to stop it, when the speed suddenly increased, and he was caught between the platform and the ceiling, crushing all his ribs and driving them through his lungs.

We have about 50 gallons of good paint of a brand we expect to quit handling, and we will sell it at a great reduction to close it out. We have this paint in a variety of colors, and it will pay you to buy it. GARRETT & AYRES.

While murders and all grades of crime are rampant throughout the country, it speaks well for the morals of our people and the good government of our city, that only one felony has been committed here in the last eighteen months.

On Monday evening, Oct. 2, J. J. Jackson, of Washington C. H., will deliver one of his famous lectures at the Newhope Baptist church, Hillsboro. The title of this interesting discourse is "Dat Joe." All are invited. Admission 10 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin H. Brown, with Madeira and Harry Brown, returned on Monday from Chicago and the World's Fair. Misses Helena Brown and Lucy Hough, of Hillsboro, who formed part of the party, returned to their home at the same time.—Chillicothe Leader.

Dr. Jos. V. Ricketts, well known to society circles in Hillsboro, was married Wednesday to Miss Josephine Hazen, of Cincinnati. The event was one of great interest, and the city papers gave voluminous details. The doctor and his bride have the best wishes of all our people.

The City Council has held three meetings during the week to prepare the way so that there need not be moment's delay in the water works enterprise after the bonds have been sold, next Tuesday. Mr. Moler, the city's engineer, is already here and has much of the preliminary work done. Representatives of the Boughen Engineering Company, who have the contract, are also on the ground.

The Hill City Cycle Club are evincing a very creditable spirit of enterprise in the furnishing and decoration of their rooms, over the First National. They propose to make their headquarters one of the most delightful resorts in the city, if good reading, innocent amusements and pleasant surroundings can accomplish it. The club now numbers twenty-eight members and is growing rapidly.

Among five columns and more, of local matters and correspondence omitted last week, was an account of the marriage of our esteemed young friend, Earl Rizer, and Miss A. L. DeHass. It's a little late, but we extend our hand with redoubled congratulations. The groom has won the soubriquet of "Early Riser." We feel certain he will continue to demonstrate his right to that title, as well as to a bonny bride, by looking after the breakfast fires.

With some kind of an agricultural implement there comes a card bearing these words, "Farmers, please examine." The card became detached Saturday, and appeared in some peculiar connections. At one time, it was exhibited on the rig a countryman had left hitched near the corner of Main and High. It was soon discovered and jerked from its perch by the irate owner. A little later, as Henry Wiggins, the would-be Judge, all dressed in his best suit of clothes, stood on the corner, bowing as loftily and sweetly as an empty headed stalk of wheat, there appeared at his back the suggestive legend, "Farmers, please examine!"

On nature's veranda, in front of the Middleton House, Samantha, Sept. 20, 1893, Rev. J. H. Middleton pronounced the magic words which made Alfred Johnson and Miss Effie M. Dod, of Lexington, one and the same fellow. Long and joyfully may they continue, "Two minds with but a single thought, Two hearts that beat as one."

Auctioneering.

"How are the fall sales?" inquired the Herald of Frank Ayres. "They're starting off all right," was the cheerful reply. "D. H. Hodson, of Buford, will sell on Saturday, the 14th of October, eight head of horses and mules, twenty-one head of cattle, fifty hogs, one thousand shocks of good corn, together with hay, farming implements, etc."

Market.

The ladies of the M. E. Church will give a market in the room formerly occupied by W. H. Glenn & Co. Sept. 30th. The ladies will please be prompt and liberal in sending their contributions, as they will not be solicited otherwise than through these columns. Send supplies to room promptly at 8 o'clock. Supplies for market consist of bread, cakes, pies, meats—such as veal loaf, pressed beef and chicken, also dressed chicken—fresh butter and eggs, celery, fruits, cottage cheese, and in fact all other good things, too numerous to mention. SECRETARY.

Burned to Death.

The relatives and friends of Ed. Higgins were startled on last Saturday by the arrival of a telegram in this city announcing his death, at Anderson, Ind., by fire.

Surmises of every nature were indulged in by all who felt an interest in the sad news. Excitement was intensified by a sensational notice in the Cincinnati Post, of Saturday evening, in which foul play and murder were freely mentioned. The bare facts in this case are about as follows:

Last Friday evening at a late hour Ed. Higgins, by which name he was best known, had retired to his room in the house where he and his wife had been living for some time. Being alone it is supposed that he had sat down to read before retiring for the night. Becoming sleepy he had lain down on the bed not unrefreshing and leaving the gas burning. Whether a leak of gas occurred, or a higher flame from increased pressure after other jets had been turned off, on this local jet, thereby causing such heat in its vicinity as to ignite the wood, will never be known. But the facts as told at the coroner's inquest were that the charred remains of Ed. Higgins were found in his room, his death having been caused by fire. The fire having originated from accidental causes.

Joseph E. Higgins was well known, and greatly respected in this community. He was a man of more than ordinary vivacity, being the life of most any company into which he was thrown. He spent nearly all of his life in this county, having only removed to Anderson, Ind., a little over a year ago. Eight years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Nannie Littler, daughter of Harvey Littler, formerly of this place. The widow in this more than ordinarily sad bereavement has the tender sympathy of the entire community. His aged parents are also spoken of in tenderest accents in the loss of this their last boy.

The funeral took place last Monday from the residence of Mr. Littler, the interment being in the Greenfield cemetery. The services at the house were conducted by Rev. Dr. McSarely, of the Presbyterian Church, of this place, of which church Ed. was a member. The services at the cemetery were conducted by the Odd Fellows in a very impressive way. They also took part in the services held at the home of Mr. Littler. The large gathering of people at both home and cemetery attested to the high esteem in which Ed. Higgins was held.

The Injured.

Of those injured in the railroad wreck at Manteno, last week, we have learned the following:

Miss Olive Patton, who had only some minor bruises, returned last Friday. She says on boarding the train they were unable to get seats until they had gone clear forward to the smoker. The conductor afterwards told them of seats in the rear coach, and they went back.

Miss Patton sat down on the right about the middle of the coach. Miss Templin sat almost opposite on the left. Mr. Jackson got a place farther to the rear, with Misses Jackson and Bellison on seats a seat or two in front of him. Miss Patton was so exhausted that she immediately fell asleep. The first she knew of the accident was when she found herself on her hands and knees alongside the railroad in the midst of the debris. She immediately began searching for her companions. She found Miss Templin with spine injured and other terrible hurts crying for water. Somehow, she got the water for her, but doesn't know how. She found the others and did what she could for them, except Mr. Jackson. She never saw him after he sat down in the car. She learned from others that after the crash he was found with his skull crushed, and holding the hand of his niece, Miss Jackson, who occupied the seat in front him.

Miss Jackson was not so desperately injured. Her shoulders were fearfully crushed, but she has so far recovered that she is expected home today.

Miss Bellison was most seriously injured of all the survivors. Her skull was broken, her face terribly lacerated, all her lower teeth knocked out, both collar bones broken, and sustained fearful cuts about the back. Her condition was considered hopeless. In spite of all that could be done she screamed with pain, until her skull was trephined and a clot of blood removed, since which time she has been improving, and may recover. Miss Bellison is at the St. Luke Hospital, in Chicago, under the most skillful surgical care and best medical treatment.

Miss Templin is at Kankakee, still unable to walk, but improving rapidly.

In connection with this matter we would add that Mr. Powell, of New Vienna, was horribly mangled. His legs were cut off near the body. His arms were severed, and one of them was never found. His head was crushed, and it would be hard to conceive of a human body more horribly butchered.

Mr. Jackson's injuries were not so frightful to look upon, although he was badly disfigured.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Scholter, a young couple from Ripley, were both killed. Mrs. Scholter died in the crash. Mr. Scholter was taken from the wreck, and though he survived several days, and pleaded piteously for his wife, no one had the heart to tell him of her death. W. H. Judd, a Cincinnati traveling man, was here Friday. He was in the rear section at the wreck and helped care for the wounded. He says the largest piece of the wrecked cars he could find was a pair of steps.

Contemptible Trickery.

The Democratic party is desperately hard up for campaign thunder. They have abandoned all attempt at argument, and are resorting to falsehood and personal slander all along the line. An instance of this is the article in the Hillsboro Gazette under the head of "Butchered to make a McKinley Holiday." A more outrageous perversion of fact could not have been invented. The bold assertion is made that Ohio day was simply a McKinley holiday, and that the soldiery were marched through the hot sun to glorify McKinley. When Cleveland opened the World's Fair, it was not denounced as a political move by Republicans, and when Gov. Altgeld, of Illinois, and other Democratic governors appeared by virtue of their office, upon various state days, the Republican press did not denounce them as political schemers. Yet, in every case, the soldiers marched as far and continued to march as long, and in no case was there more genuine modesty shown than by Gov. Wm. McKinley. When the programme was laid out it was not understood that the weather would be so warm. And the march, so the papers say, would have been much shortened, but for the Democratic colonel of the 14th regiment. Be that as it may, Gov. McKinley had no more to do with it than the editor of the Hillsboro Gazette. Such miserable falsehoods, so far-fetched as these only serve to show the desperate condition of the Democratic cause. The Republican party is willing to go before the people in a just and fair argument on the merits of the political issues. But the Democratic party, from Larry and Bill Also down to the rum-soaked heelers, are trying to divert attention from their wild cat revenue tariff intentions by an avalanche of personal abuse as false as it is villainous. In connection with this soldier question, we want to call the attention of the Gazette to the fact that there was a time when our soldiers were "butchered," not for three hours, but for four years by an armed array of traitors, everyone of whom was a Democrat. We haven't heard that the Gazette objected then, or has ever since found fault with that state of affairs.

The Secret of Beauty

is health. Those who desire to be beautiful should do all they can to restore their health if they have lost it. The work which one may do, the rest he must take, his baths, his diet, his exercise, are matters for individual consideration; but they must be carefully thought of and never neglected. There are times when one can guess, without looking in the glass, that the eyes are dull and the skin is mottled. This is a case for specific treatment. If you apply to the France Medical Institute, 38 and 40 West Gay street, Columbus, O., or to one of the physicians who makes regular visits to your town, your case will be carefully and thoroughly examined by the medical staff, who are all specialists and have been chosen for their skill and experience. Their opinion will be furnished you free, whether you take treatment or not. They do not consider that their responsibility ends when they have taken your case and furnished treatment; but hold themselves at all times ready and willing to aid and direct you by their advice. All forms of chronic, nervous and private disease will be successfully treated on the most scientific principles. Consultation free and strictly confidential.—Post.

Drs. France and Ottman, formerly of New York, now of the France Medical and Surgical Institute, Columbus, Ohio, by request of many friends and patients, have decided to visit Hillsboro, O., Wednesday, Oct. 6. Consultation and examination free and strictly confidential in the private parlor of the Kramer Hotel, from 8 a. m. to 2 p. m. One day only.

A party of friends met Tenny Sanders last Saturday evening and were "kidding" him about something the News-Herald said about his speech nominating Joe Elton. "O, well," he answered, "it don't make any difference. Hardly anybody will read it in the News-Herald."—Gazette.

In this low estimate of the general intelligence our young friend does the people of Highland county a gross injustice. Here and there may be an illiterate Democrat or Republican who has lost his sight. These are the only ones who can't read. But when the News-Herald comes, even these unfortunates never close their eyelids in slumber until some one has perused it for them. It's like the jug of spiritual consolation in a Democratic love feast. They all take it.

Mr. Charles Fulton, of Lovetts, Adams county, entered the college Monday.

Several Clermont traveling men have been laid off by their houses by reason of the "change" in the financial condition of the country, for which quite a number of very patriotic citizens proudly voted.—Clermont Courier.

Death of David Jackson.

The remains of David Jackson, one of the victims of the Big Four railroad disaster near Manteno, Ill., Sept. 18, 1893, was brought to this city on Thursday morning, and were taken in charge by undertaker Holmes, and conveyed to his late residence near Carmel this county. Deceased was born Feb. 2, 1841, near this place, where he has resided all his life. He was the youngest son of David and Elizabeth Jackson. His mother was a sister of D. F. Maddox of this city. She died when the subject of this sketch was about two years old. His father lived some years after the death of his wife, and the children were kept together in their parental home. The care of young David fell to his two sisters, Mary and Sarah, who gave to their baby brother their undivided love and tenderness, and whose sudden and violent death has prostrated and rendered desolate their hearts and home. David Jackson was unmarried. While possessing all the qualities of love and manliness such as any woman could trust and revere he seemed to feel that it was his duty to remain single while his two sisters survived him, realizing that they had devoted their young maidenhood to his care and comfort and remained at home for his sake, he repaid the sacrifice by caring for them in the strength of his stalwart manhood. Libbie Jackson, niece of the deceased, who was with him at the time of the accident, and was herself greatly injured and who made her home with them from her early infancy, shared in unmeasured degree his love and confidence and more than fatherly care, and is bereft indeed by this awful disaster.

David Jackson was a man of whom too much cannot be said. His character was above reproach; his private and public record clean and pure; he was loved by his neighbors, respected and honored by his friends, and in every sense of the word was an honest man, the noblest work of God. His sudden and violent death sent a thrill of horror and sadness throughout the entire county and words of indignation and condemnation were heard from every one at the seeming criminal carelessness of the railroad managers in permitting such dangerous relations of fast running trains, resulting in accident and death to so many innocent victims, who in the unconscious embrace of slumber, were hurled into eternity. David Jackson was not a member of any church, and yet he was a believer in God and immortality. His ideal man was the carpenter of Nazareth, whose name he revered and whose virtues he sought to assimilate. Religion is the bond that unites us to God, and the first revelation of it is in the human soul, permeating the nature controlling the life. His remains rest beside his father and mother, brothers and sisters in the home burying ground, a few yards from the old home and under the orchard trees, where as a boy he had so often played. Funeral services conducted by Rev. A. T. Cunningham.

"There are dear words murmured by loving lips
Far richer than any other;
But the sweetest word in that home heard
Was the endearing name of brother.
O, magical word! May it never die
From the lips that love to speak it,
Nor melt away from the loving hearts
That even would break to keep it."

The Dog Days are supposed to be past, yet Old Ignorance has another spasm this week and fairly froths at the mouth about the Gazette, filling the columns of the News-Herald again with a lot of abusive slush concerning this paper. In the mass of idiotic diatribe the only ray of intelligence is seen in the fact that he has discovered an interesting subject to fret about.—Gazette.

We are glad to hear that dog days are past. It's an old saying that every dog has his day, and old Gazzie has certainly had hers. Her own admission that it is past will be quite a relief to many worthy people who have again and again been the victims of cowardly assaults from the kennel she disgraces. She may find satisfaction in proclaiming herself an interesting subject. Heaven preserve us from more of the breed! It's not what we want. She's a sheep-killer and a shin biter. She hasn't the courage of a bull dog or the intelligence of a poodle. She snaps and sneaks. She never stands to fight, but yelps when you hit her, and crawls to cover. Yes, thanks to a retributive Providence, her dog days are over.

Much correspondence and other interesting matter is crowded out this week. Readers and writers will please have patience with us until this little scrimmage is ended.
